Course Description

This medical education activity is intended for pediatricians, pediatric residents, family practitioners, emergency physicians, nurse practitioners and clinical staff working with pediatric patients.

The conference will address current research, therapies, and clinical outcomes. The conference is appropriate for practitioners in both a community or hospital setting. Any health professional interested in the care of pediatric patients is welcome.

Course Objectives

At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be able to:

The Things Kids Tell Us (And Parents Don't)

- Interpret verbal and nonverbal communication from our patients and be more comfortable asking sensitive questions.

Update Evolution Sexual Health Trends (Attitudes/Behaviors)

- Identify trends of sexual health behaviors in adolescents and teenagers.

Approaching Sexuality Identity and Transgender Issues in the Pediatric Patient

- Discuss concerns comfortably of the LGBT patient in the office setting.

Teaching/Addressing Sexuality from Birth to Adulthood for Parents and Practitioners

- List the typical sexual health developmental milestones that occur from birth to adulthood and how to discuss them with their patients and families.

Approaching Sexuality in the Child with Disabilities

- Plan and address contraceptive issues unique to the adolescent and teen with intellectual disabilities.
