COURSE DESCRIPTION

Welcome to the 53rd Annual Riley Pediatric Conference. This continuing educational meeting addresses clinical best practices across a broad array of primary care pediatrics from the care of infants through adolescence. The two day event will offer plenary presentations on Infectious Diseases, Health Care Systems, and Care Coordination programs for children with special health care needs. Hot Topic Lectures will follow each morning's plenary with talks regarding, kids coping with chronic medical illnesses, pediatric allergy to medicine, eating disorders in children and adolescents, pediatric dermatology, ophthalmology, and hypertension. The afternoon Interactive Lectures will feature topics on sports injuries, urology, high risk new-born follow-up, management of office emergencies, endocrinology, family community resources, and more.

Our Plenary Speakers:

Aaron E. Carroll, MD, MS Professor of Pediatrics, Associate Dean for Research Mentoring IU School of Medicine
John C. Christenson, MD Professor of Clinical Pediatrics, Clinical Chief, Ryan White Center for Pediatric Infectious Disease and Global Health IU School of Medicine, Riley Hospital for Children at IU Health
Dennis Z. Kuo, MD, MHS Associate Professor Division Chief of General Pediatrics University at Buffalo
Jeanne W. McAllister, BSN, MS, MHA Associate Professor of Pediatrics Children's Health Services Research
Course Objectives: At the conclusion of the conference, participants should be able to: ■Recognize the challenges of treating/preventing serious infectious diseases ■Identify common mental health comorbidities in the children with chronic medical illness ■Discern drug allergies and when to refer to an allergist ■Assess for medical complications related to eating disorders in children and adolescence ■Distinguish relevant “drivers” of authentic/quality care coordination for children with special health care needs/complex conditions and how to carry out “Model Phases” of a care coordination intervention to assist families ■Establish strategies and resources for the immediate management of several life threatening pediatric emergencies ■Discuss evaluations of common endocrine problems using high yield laboratory and radiologic studies ■Identify risk factors to developing sports injuries, especially overuse syndromes and learn when to refer ■Evaluate infants with feeding difficulties due to medical complexities

- Discuss human-centered design principles and how they can inform care coordination programs for children with special health care needs
- Explain recent developments in diagnosis and treatment of dermatologic disorders in children
- Analyze the difference between orbital cellulitis and preseptal cellulitis and learn why and how to identify anisocoria
- Determine if patients are eligible for new research trials, targeted hypertension telemedicine, and/or multidisciplinary clinics involving pediatric nephrology
- Recount various healthcare systems around the world, and the relative tradeoffs inherent to them
- Recognize and diagnose common anatomic pediatric urology problems and explain the appropriate radiographic evaluation for urinary tract infections and hydronephrosis and discern what constitutes a urologic emergency.
